Collectors are eating up vintage menus

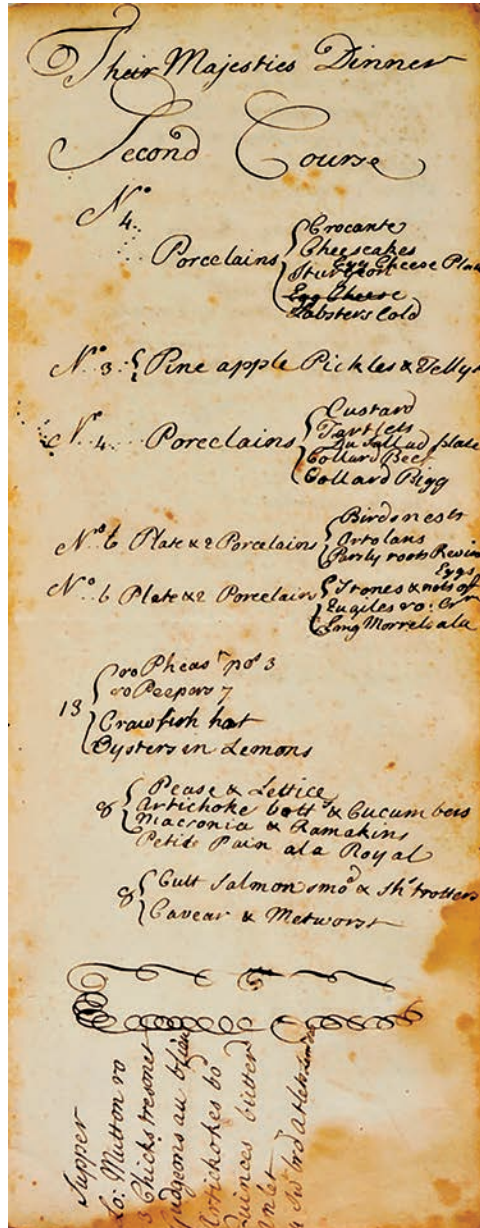

BY WILLIAM FLOOD

If you're like most of us, it's been quite a while since you've dined in a restaurant and ordered a meal from a menu held in your hands rather than from an app on your phone. Yet, did you know that what was once so common — the restaurant menu — is a popular collectible?

Menu collecting is a niche within the larger ephemera collecting hobby and popular for many reasons. Menus have a nostalgic appeal, particularly for long-gone eateries that collectors recognize or have visited. Menus also provide a fascinating economic lesson reflected in the age-old prices printed on their pages. Culinary trends and once-popular cuisine are also spotlighted as is the evolution of commercial printing and design. And, even though the most historic menus can cost thousands of dollars, menu collecting remains a relatively inexpensive hobby.

There is archeological evidence that something akin to menus once existed in China's Song Dynasty — but menus as we know them date back to 18th-century Europe. At that time, dining outside of the home was rare. While taverns and inns served travelers, menus were not necessary, as guests ate what the house provided at communal tables and at a specified time. Restaurants, as we know them evolved in 18th-century Paris. Catering to the wealthy, these establishments featured luxurious interiors, individual tables, a range of dining hours, and fine fare selected from a list of options. Daily selections were often listed on a bulletin board outside, on a chalkboard near the dining area (from which our term à la carte or 'according to the board' emerged), or simply recited by the waiter.

The use of a paper menu came later - the word menu itself is French in origin. The earliest surviving examples hail from the mid-18th-century for soirees hosted by King Louis XV of France, typically sole pages listing several courses and dessert options for the guests. After the French Revolution, their use spread to restaurants, replacing the more common menu boards. Similarly, in England, the bill of fare

Opening an antique shop during a pandemic: 'A leap of faith'

BY ERIC C. RODENBERG

BRAZIL, Ind. – Some folks may think picking up and moving more than 1,400 miles, during the first month of Covid-19, to set up an antique business in a town where no one knows you may be a little “off the hinge.”

But, that’s exactly what a young Montana family did, arriving in Brazil, Ind., on March 31, 2020. It was a “leap of faith,” said 40-year-old Michelle Churchill. She and her husband, Mike, and 18-year-old daughter Katlyn, first saw the property online around January of 2020.

The Churchills are natives of Billings, Mont., where Michelle’s grandparents and parents operate Wright Custom Repair, a 46-year-old furniture restoration business. Michelle grew up in the business. Mike has worked for his in-laws for more than 20 years in all aspects of stripping, repairing and refurbishing antique furniture.

As antique pickings are sparse in Montana, the Churchills often traveled east to buy pieces to restore and sell. Wanting to be closer to the action, they were surfing the internet for greener pastures during early 2020.

What they found posted from the small town of Brazil, 64 miles southwest of Indianapolis, showed some promise.

The Victorian home was built circa 1885 by Judge Daniel McGregor and his wife Bell. When Bell died in 1928, she willed the home to the community YMCA. In 1949, a gymnasium with a full basketball court was added to the home.

What a perfect place to have a home and walk through a doorway onto a 3,000-square-foot court to fill with quality antiques.

“I said to Mike, let’s get it,” Michelle said. “He thought I was crazy, but I finally talked him into it. I call it opening his mind. Days later we took a flight to Indiana. It was really a leap of faith for both of us. We jumped with a dream.”

The dream is called, appropriately, Off The Hinge Antiques & Home Décor. It is located at 37 West Kruzan St., about four blocks from downtown Brazil.

Collectors’ treasure trove finds new homes at Green Valley Auctions

BY SUSAN EMERSON NUTTER

MT. CRAWFORD, Va. — Green Valley Auctions recently hosted a two-day, online only event with the second day featuring the lovely collections put together by Betty and the late Jim Oglesby of Virginia Beach. This couple loved to collect and did so across a wide range of genres resulting in a very interesting auction.

Furniture offered included examples of Chippendale, Queen Anne, Georgian & Empire pieces. Brown furniture was featured with a very functional New England Queen Anne scroll top highboy bringing $1,502. Made of cherry, this highboy boasted an 11-drawer configuration with the piece being 86 inches high overall.

A heavily inlaid low boy standing 32 inches high and being 33 inches wide and 20 inches deep brought $598, while a fine Georgian eight drawer, chest on chest in mahogany was bid to $819.

Clocks were in abundance this day as this collecting area was one the Oglesbys loved. The top lot of the clock’s honors went tana to Indiana during the first crucial month of a pandemic presented a few problems with, perhaps, a silver lining. "There was not a lot of traffic on the highway; but all the restaurants were closed. We ate mostly at truck stops."

Upon arriving, the gymnasium had to be re-roofed, there was quite a bit of electrical re-wiring and Mike was gently coerced into hanging Michelle's collection of 30 children's scooters (one all wooden with spoke wheels dating from 1915) from the ceiling. They are not for sale, but they're interesting "eye candy."

"The traffic already has been incredible. We have a hard time keeping up. We buy mostly through the week and open-up on the weekends (although they do take appointments on the weekdays). But everybody has been very supportive and it's already busier than I could have imagined."

Mike, for his part, is a "hands-on," perfectionist. "I go through every piece of furniture we buy. If there's a broken piece, I replace it. If it needs stripping, repair or refinishing, it gets done right. I pull every drawer out and make sure they move smoothly. It must be up to our standards to go onto the showroom. Every piece is ready to go into your home."

The Churchills aren't afraid to tackle the big pieces, back bars, gas pumps or any petrolinia, a solid oak deacon bench and large oversized cabinets. They also deal in smalls, such as crocks, some glass and unique hard-to-find antiques.

"We love this business," Michelle says. "We're now well-known in town, although we don't do a lot of buying here. But I love to meet people, find these things with such cool history and bring them back here to and give them a new home. We're all happy to be settled into our new home and business."

Right: The Churchills have left the old scoreboard, basketball hoops and YMCA sign in their 3,000-square-foot showroom.

Many of older Brazil customers appreciate their preserving the site, which always generates interesting conversations.

Right: A double-wide hall tree should make a statement in any home. Using his 20 years' experience in woodworking, Mike Churchill will not let any piece hit the showroom without being "ready to take home." His standards at Off The Hinge Antiques & Home Decor is very high.

to the Foster Campos Federal style eglobe banjo clock that realized $2,302. A hand-painted image of Aurora in her chariot pulled by two white steeds ushering in a new day with the sun rising behind them decorated the clock's circular lower portion.

Another banjo clock, this being a Walter H. Durfee example with a mahogany case was taken to $1,113, while an acorn shelf clock having a gorgeous acorn stylized case went to $1,000. The painted image of what appears to be a Federal style home decorated the base of this clock and was identified with the words, "Residence of J.C. Brown, Esq."

Loads of decorative art items rounded out this two-day sale. A room size oriental rug measuring 13 feet 10 inches by 9 feet 9 inches done in creams, oranges, greens, and navy blue was bid to $2,552.

Art glass also crossed the auction block with several examples by Charles Lotton up for sale. A signed and dated 1989 pulled feather design vase that stood 10 1/2" high made $361. The vase's colors included a pink body with gold accents and green swirls that spread to a feather like design over the main body of the vase.

The artistic beauty of cloisonne is undeniable. When an almost 14-inch-long box is covered in such beauty, it is going to command top dollar. Just such a box, that was 5 1/2 inches high and 6 1/2 inches deep, sold for $452. Its decoration included yellow and white florals, green vines and leaves, Oriental motifs in an orange color all on a royal blue field.

Art offered covered a wide range of styles and themes, but the miniature examples are what seemed to be leading this area. At only 5 1/4 inch by 6 1/4 inch, an oil on canvas titled "Evening Light" by English artist Elizabeth Brown realized $354.

A 16th or 17th oil portrait believed to be of the Archduke Charles Stiermark (Steiermark), 1540-1590, deaccessioned from the Cleveland Museum of Art, sold for $792. Charles was the archduke of Australia and the father of 15 children. The artist of this work is unknown.

Above: Having a gorgeous acorn shape and acorn finials, the hand-painted image of the "Residence of J.C. Brown, Esq." at its base sealed the deal for this acorn shelf clock which garnered a $1,000 winning bid.

Below: The look and details of this H.B. Horton's Ithaca calendar parlor clock were impressive. Standing 21 inches high, this beauty made $658.

Decorative arts will highlight Shapiro estate at Briggs Auction

Garnet Valley, Pa. — Briggs Auction, Inc. is pleased to offer an outstanding and stylish collection of furnishings, fine art, decorative arts, and more at its Fine Estates Auction on Friday, March 26.

The auction will be available for online bidding only. At 11 a.m. on Friday, March 26, the auction will open for real-time, online bidding on two platforms: Bid At Briggs (Briggs Auction's own online bidding platform), and Live Auctioneers.

Highlights of the auction will include a fine collection from the Shapiro Estate. Geraldine ("Gerrie") Shapiro, a long-time and community-minded resident of Irvington, N.Y., was a skilled potter whose creations adorn the spaces of the Irvington home she shared with her husband of 54 years, Albert Shapiro, and was a known collector of African and other art. She was also dedicated to protecting and improving the quality of the natural environment, and was instrumental in helping design the Main Street War Memorials and the Rip Van Winkle steps and the bronze statue on Main Street in Irvington.

"As a craftswoman potter with extensive landscape design knowledge and expertise, Mrs. Shapiro had a keen eye for style and design, and surrounded herself with furnishings, decoratives, clothing, jewelry, and fine art, that reflected her elegant, interesting style and exquisite taste. We are proud to offer her Estate collection at auction," says Stephen Turner, Owner of Briggs Auction, Inc. "We believe these new-to-the-market pieces will find good homes with eager and discerning buyers."

This carefully curated collection will include a selection of antique, name-brand, and midcentury modern/modern design furnishings, by makers including Frank Lloyd Wright for Cassina Italy, Arper Italia, Holly Hunt, Angelo Cortesi, Dakota Jackson, Saporiti Italia, CY Mann, Harvey Prober, Kittinger, Stendig, and more, and also includes a Steinway Model A baby-grand piano.

The heart of the auction beats in the excellent collection of decorative arts which includes studio art pottery by Geraldine Shapiro herself, and by other contemporary artists such as, Peter Voulkos, Peter Callas, Bennett Bean, William Morris, Jeff Shapiro (no known relation), Jeffrey Zigulis, Paul Chaleff, Nancee Meeker, and many more. The auction will also feature a fine selection of contemporary studio art glass by Richard Marquis, John Lewis, Ira Sapir, Vandermark, and others., as well as craftsman puzzle and bureau boxes by Richard Rothbard, Michael Elkan, and Philip Weber.

Above: A Val Bertoia sound sculpture titled "Ovals of Sound", B-1882, circa 2015, from a private collection. Estimate: $5000 – 7000.

Fine Asian pottery and ceramics, several Inuit and argillite carvings by Adamie Ashevak, Thomas Amm, Christian White, and Darrell White, and carved marble sculptures by Debra Schaffer and Karen Karnes are also items of note.

A collection of Paolo Soleri Wind Chimes, a Val Bertoia Sound Sculpture, and an interesting assortment of midcentury modern and contemporary designer lamps are also featured items in the auction.

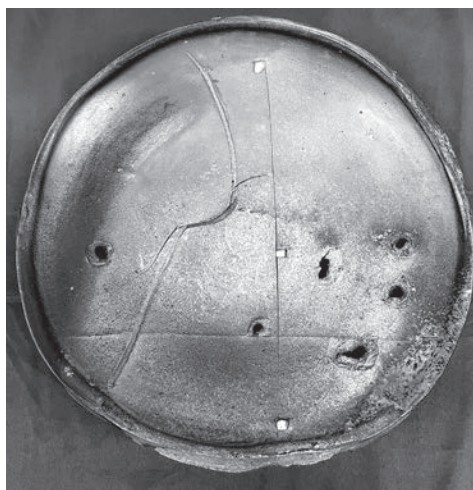

The full auction catalog and registration and bidding information is available through Briggs Auction (BriggsAuction.com), or Live Auctioneers (liveauctioneers.com). Preview will be by appointment only on Wednesday, March 24 and Thursday, March 25. Please call or email Briggs Auction to schedule.

Right: Peter Voulkos gouged and incised anagama fired pottery plate/charger with porcelain pass-throughs. From the Geraldine Shapiro Estate. Estimate: $4000 – 6000.

Above: Abraham Walkowitz a colorful oil on canvas, titled "Gloucester Fishermen". From the Geraldine Shapiro Estate. Estimate: $2000 – 4000.

Below: Darrell White carved argillite sculpture titled "The Raven and First People", 2004, with abalone, catlinite, and 18K gold inlay. From the Geraldine Shapiro Estate. Estimate: $1500 – 3000.

Planning a trip? Event Finder can help you locate auctions and shows. All events listed under the Event Finder heading are advertised in this issue of AntiqueWeek. Events are listed by state, then by town with a brief description of the event, the opening date and finally the page number where the ad can be located.

Event Finder is only for advertised events. Auctioneers and show managers who want to be listed in our free calendar listings may continue to do so. Those free listings will be contained in the Auction or Show calendar sections.

While we have taken great care in compiling the information shown here, we strongly urge you to call the auctioneer or show manager listed for the event in case of cancellations or postponements. We also encourage auctioneers and show managers to contact us with any changes to their schedule. AntiqueWeek is not responsible for errors or omissions.

Calendars can also be searched online at www.antiqueweek.com

For advertising information please call 800-876-5133 ext. 133 or e-mail advertising@antiqueweek.com

Please report late delivery

AntiqueWeek strives to provide customers with the best delivery possible. Occasionally, areas of the country do not receive timely delivery of the paper. The goal of AntiqueWeek's late delivery staff is to work with the USPS to get your paper to you — on time, every time. If your paper is not delivered on or before the issue date, please let us know.

These areas experienced multiple reports of late deliveries during the week of 02/23/21: Maryland, Illinois, Virginia, Missouri, Arkansas, Pennsylvania.

These states reported single reports of late delivery for the same week: Michigan, Kentucky.

Due to the high volume of calls we receive on a weekly basis, we are publishing some phone numbers for the USPS. We encourage you to call them and let them know how their recent changes have impacted your delivery.
Debra Benn: (317) 870-8244, Tracey Murphy: (317) 870-8238, Deborah Samuels: (317) 870-8245, Lynn Seymour: (317) 870-8263

Our staff members will continue to address the late delivery reports we receive. We are constantly striving to rectify the late delivery problem. Please call our customer care center at (800) 876-5133 or email subscriptions@antiqueweek.com to report late delivery. Continue to report delivery issues if problems are not fixed after the first call so staff members can continue to report these difficulties to the USPS.

In order to ensure everyone can see the paper on time, AntiqueWeek uploads each issue every Saturday morning to its website. The online issue is free to subscribers and totally keyword searchable. Visit www.antiqueweek.com.

Vintage Menus

evolved, eventually making its way into dining establishments.

During the industrial revolution, in both Europe and America, an urban restaurant industry arose serving industrial and office workers who increasingly relied upon commercial eateries. Across the 19th and early 20th century, transportation advances such as trains, steamships, and eventually airlines exposed people of even modest financial means to fine dining. As well, waves of immigration and two world wars exposed people to foreign cultures leading to the popularity of cuisines from other countries. In the post-war era, the movement to the suburbs only served to fuel the number and variety of restaurants available to the growing middle-class. Restaurant dining was no longer unusual, and menus were as commonplace as phone books.

In the earliest European restaurants, menus were typically unsophisticated listings of offerings, perhaps augmented by a few illustrations. They were physically small, often written on sheets of cardstock. The industrial revolution spawned new printing technologies, like color lithography, which gave rise to more ornate menus. During that era, "menu specialist" printing companies formed, designing and printing menus for which they become famous. Names include J. H. Bufford & Sons, L. Prang and Co, and S.D. Childs & Co., which sold particularly for the hotel trade.

Artwork and typography on Victorian-era menus followed the conventions of the day, featuring elegant imagery like flowers, cherubs, and bucolic scenery. In Great Britain, it was often regimental themes featuring coats of arms or exotic imagery depicting the far-reaching British Empire. To enhance their richness, menus would often be placed in leather "menu books" bound with a silk cord.

Menus grew in importance in the 1920s when restaurateurs began to view menus as a marketing tool. Menu designers turned their attention towards Art Deco and Art Nouveau graphics and color became widely used. Larger-format menus became popular in the 1930s and manufacturing advances like die-cutting were widely employed. Manufacturing efficiencies also took hold because color offset printing was impractical for short press runs, printing companies often produced pictorial menu "shells" with blank spaces for the dishes and prices to be typed or handwritten by restaurants themselves.

In the 19th-century, it was relatively uncommon for menus to display prices. Including prices didn't become popular until well into the 20th-century. Yet, even in the 20th century, it was common for restaurants to offer two menus: a regular menu with prices listed and a "blind" menu without pricing. Blind menus were given to female companions of male diners, under the presumption the female guest should not be pressured by pricing, or during business dinners when a host felt it inappropriate for his guests to see costs.

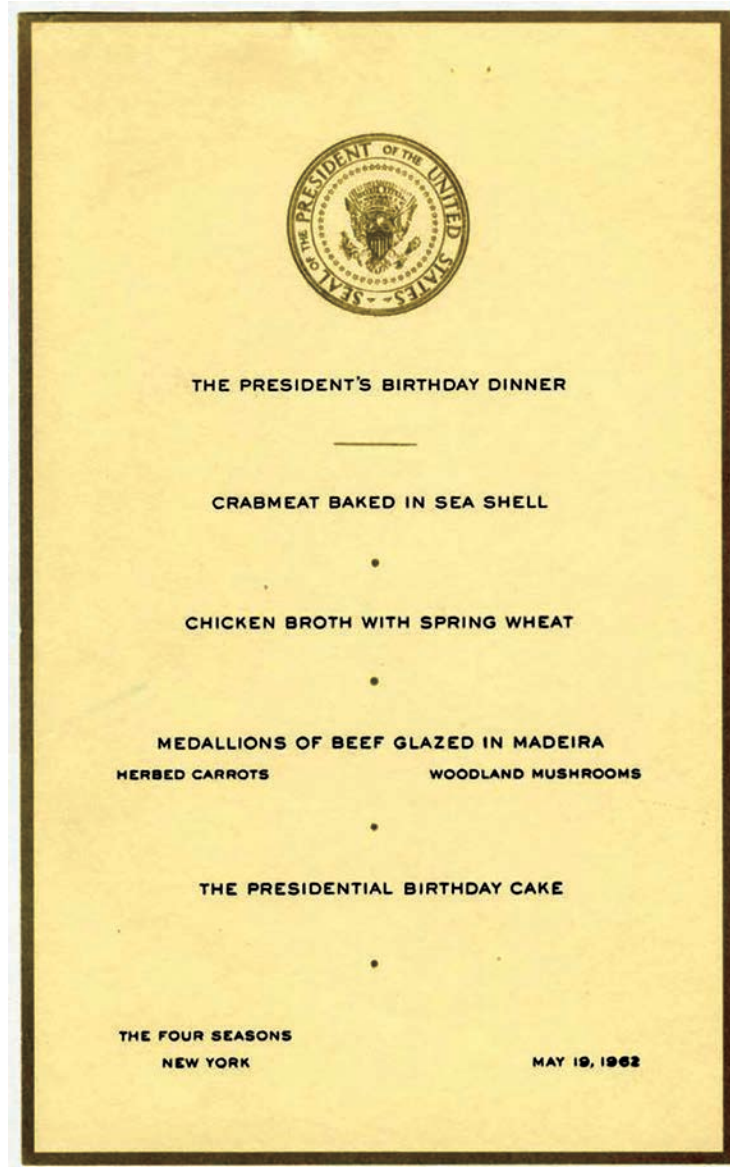

By mid-century, cocktail menus came into common use. The cocktail menu has a history all its own, often tied to promoting the allure of a bar's brand. Cocktail menus often had glossy illustrations of the drinks paired with enticing drink names but very little detail – all to create a sense of trade secret.

Novelty menus produced in odd shapes, also became popular across much of the 20th-century, typically used as marketing tools to attract diners. They became popular in bars and nightclubs, specialty restaurants, and for children's menus. Every shape and size imaginable were produced – from die-cuts of Seattle's Space needle to cowboy hats in Western-themed steakhouses. Some restaurants turned to using postcard menus which could eventually be mailed to friends or family, furthering their marketing impact.

By the 1980s, lamination and full-color photography were commonplace. From that point forward, menu reached a Zenith of practicality. Yet, it also seemed as if the halcyon days of the menu as a distinctive marketing tool, anchored in art and design, had begun to wane. Collectors seem to be of the same mindset, gravitating mainly to pieces made prior to the 1970s.

Given the huge variety of menus, collectors can easily be drawn to the entire range of choices. More typically, they'll end up specializing in a certain type of menu. Noted earlier, menus from long-lost restaurants have a natural appeal. But collectors are also drawn to specific categories such as the elegant dinner menus from ocean liners, trains, and early airliners and sometimes from specific lines. Some collect menus associated with special events like Presidential dinners. Others drill down to a specific cuisine like vintage Chinese restaurant menus from the days when a Chinese meal was considered exotic dining. Menus from roadside diners, lunch counters, and early fast-food restaurants interest those with affinity towards America's post-war, often car-oriented culture. And those vintage cocktail menus - not only do they have their fans, but they have also been instrumental in the revival of classic mixology and cocktail culture.

The challenge for any collector is in finding copies that are in reasonably good condition - not stained or torn beyond appreciation. Many menus were lost to time. Ponder that the next time you find yourself sitting at a restaurant table. Perhaps you might want to ask your server for a copy of the menu for posterity.
