Vintage Mother's Day items are a perfect gift

BY DONALD-BRIAN JOHNSON

Artists of every sort have always found Moms to be fair game. There've been moms in song; in stories, on stage and on screen.

Those are the moms you've heard of. The famous ones. But at least once a year, every mom has her moment in the sun. That's when the second Sunday in May rolls around, and with it, our annual celebration of "all things Mom": Mother's Day!

Over the years, one of the most time-honored and heartwarming representations of motherhood has been the Madonna. During the 1940s and '50s, almost every well-known ceramic firm included a Madonna figurine in its spring line. Now collectors are drawn to these ceramics for their innate beauty, and their endless variations on a single theme, as interpreted by a wide variety of artists. Ceramic Madonnas serve as graceful, ongoing reminders that every day should, (at least in some small way), be "Mother's Day."

Although many view Mother's Day as a "modern" holiday, the custom has its roots in ancient times. There was an early Egyptian festival honoring Isis, "Mother of the Pharaohs," and March festivals in honor of the Greek mother goddess Rhea, and her Roman counterpart, Cybele, "The Great Mother." One ancient tradition has stayed with us to the present day: a gift of flowers as part of the festivities.

The rise of Christianity led to a Lenten observance honoring "Mother Church," (the home church in which early Christians were baptized). By the 1600s, this event had morphed into the English custom of "Mothering Day," which offered temporary relief from the austerity of Lent. Even servants were given the day off to spend with their families, and stringent Lenten fasting requirements were lifted for a day of revelry.

When the Pilgrims came to America, "Mothering Day" remained behind in England. Stemming from a dim Puritanical view of gaudy festivity, the idea of a specific "Mother's Day" lay dormant in the United States until the mid-1800s.

The unlikely impetus in the renewed push for an American "Mother's Day" was Julia Ward Howe, best known for her stirring lyrics to "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." In 1870, distressed by the violence of the recently concluded Civil War, Howe issued a proclamation calling for a "Mother's Day" that would celebrate both motherhood and international peace.

Howe's initial suggested date for the observance — July 4 — garnered little support from those with other plans for the 4th of July. However, by 1873, 18 cities across the United States were observing a "Mother's Day" on an alternate date (June 2nd), their get-togethers paid for by Howe. Unfortunately, when the funding ended, so did most of the "Mother's Day" gatherings.

Howe's plan may have been short-lived, but, thanks to her fame, she gave a major boost to the modern concept of Mother's Day. Nearly concurrent, and perhaps even more important in the development of the holiday, were the efforts of less-famous Anna Reeves Jarvis. In 1858, Jarvis formed a group in West Virginia to observe "Mother's Friendship Day". Her goal: to promote reconciliation between Union and Confederate backers. Following Jarvis's death, her daughter, Anna M. Jarvis took up the cause.

Known as "the mother of Mother's Day," Anna M. campaigned for a day honoring both her beloved mother, and the goal of world peace. On May 10, 1908, Mother's Day had its first official observance at Andrew's Methodist Church, Grafton, W.Va., where Jarvis' mother had served 20 years as a Sunday School teacher. White carnations, Mother Jarvis's favorite, were presented to each person attend-

Indoor Antique Advertising Show brought out buyers

BY JACK KELLY

INDIANAPOLIS — “It’s a home-run, we knocked it out of the park,” said promoter Damon Granger, calling attention to a record number of dealers and buyers for the semi-annual Indoor Antique Advertising Show at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

The show was the fourth gathering since Granger took over its leadership in 2017, missing only one date because of Covid shutdowns last year. “Dealer and visitor numbers have risen over 50 percent since our first one,” said Granger.

Jim Maley of California displayed 12-inch-tall California dairy milk bottle-shaped porcelain advertising sign priced at $1,200. He said this was the first time he had set up at the show with Granger as promoter. As the event ended Maley said it was “better than I imagined,” adding, “I’m planning to come back again.”

It was a shorter trip for Myron Huffman, who drove to the Indy Show from Spencerville, Ind. He featured a 4-inch-tall 1905 Totem advertising tobacco can with a colorful Indian and totem pole illustration. Although a mere 4 inches, it carried a tall collector price of $2,500. Also measuring 4 inches tall was a 1910 Busy Biddy Spices tin at a more moderate $150.

Yet another Indiana dealer, Lavon Yoder of Shipshewana, pointed out a 28-inch-tall life-size wood and papier mache’ sand paint pig advertising Beechnut Hams & Bacon tagged at $7,500. Keeping Porky company on the same table was a near-same-size papier mache’ animated nodding head red goose advertising shoes of the same name. The goose seemed to nod approval when a customer asked about the price, which was $1,800.

Although many advertising items are flashy and colorful to attract attention, not all fit that category.

“That one is not pretty but it sure is nifty,” said one shopper pointing to a 14-inch by 12-foot-long weathered grey wood Hub City, Iowa, sign. The main attraction was in black paint lettering promoting “Hub City Moto Cycles.” Dealer Ty

Mayberry of Columbus Grove, Ohio, said the term “Moto” was used to describe the famous early Indian Motorcycle, a desirable brand to motorcycle collectors. The piece was found in an old building being torn down and was one half of the two side panels of a stairway built

Classic vehicles tell the story of one man’s collecting passion

BY ERIC C. RODENBERG

SPRINGVILLE, N.Y. — Many of the sympathy cards received by the family after local businessman Jack White died in January noted “he was one of a kind.” Fittingly, his May 22 estate auction in this small town, about 30 miles south of Buffalo, will be a “one of a kind sale” within the Buffalo region of the Empire State.

The 79-year-old White was the founder and past owner of White’s Appliance in Springville, best known for his generosity, small town business support and jokes. A gregarious man, White was a fixture at area auctions, car shows, tractor and tool meets and numerous “cruise ins” over the years.

White began collecting at a young age, buying a 1930 Chevrolet when he was 19 years old. By the time he was nearing retirement age, he began really hitting his stride buying more cars, tractors, hit-and-miss engines, farm primitives (including several old wooden washing machines) and nearly anything else that caught his fancy.

“He claimed he never meant to buy them, they just followed him home,” Beverly, his wife of nearly 60 years, says. “Jack could fix just about anything and loved to talk about his old cars.”

And there is much to talk about. White meticulously maintained and carefully stored his cars in outbuildings and within semi-trailers located on his property.

At the same time, he was always ready to pull off the tarps and take any number of his cars, tractors, engines and other curiosities to shows and outings throughout the area.

“You could see that they were very important to him,” Rich Mason of R.G. Mason Auctions who is co-brokering the sale with United Auctions, said. “He took great care of them. All we had to do was take off the tarps, dust them off and they’re ready to go. They’re ready to drive home and they’re in beautiful shape.”

In what is considered a major collection in New York and beyond, the classic car segment of the sale offers several cars with extremely low mileage: a 1930 Ford one-ton stake-body truck (purchased from Earl Northrup of Earl’s Restaurant in nearby Chaffee, New York), 1,653 miles; a 1941 Mercury Sedan Model 19A, a 4-door car with “suicide doors,” 8,976 miles; a 1923 Chevrolet 4-door Touring Car, 1,148 miles; and a 1930 Ford Model A 5-window coupe, 13,041 miles.

For the sake of novelty, if not rarity, the sale will include a 1928 Ford Model A “Woody” delivery pickup (5,360 miles) and a custom-built “Woody” camper trailer. In these early days of production, Ford often supplied the chassis and then the trucks went to coach builders who built the body to meet the customers’ need.

The 1928 “Woody” truck and “hump-back” trailer appear to be a matching set, according

Bell Association celebrates 75 years at May convention

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — The American Bell Association will hold its 75th convention on May 23-28 at the Crowne Plaza Hotel in downtown Knoxville. A celebration of 75 years will be highlighted.

Two spectacular tours start off the convention with an all-day grand tour by bus exploring the Smoky Mountains region stopping at Pigeon Forge for sightseeing, shopping, and lunch. Then on to Newfound Gap and Clingman's Dome for some beautiful displays of the spectacular mountain range. This tour will have guides along the way to enrich the region's history.

On Tuesday, a two-hour bus tour narrated by a local guide includes the rich history of Knoxville and the Civil War history of families fighting on both sides of the war. It will end at the 1982 World's Fair Park for photo opportunities and visits to the Sunsphere and the Tennessee Amphitheatre.

During the convention, 11 programs on bells will be offered starting on Tuesday with the 75th Celebration of the American Bell Association's history. Additional programs start on Wednesday on Mechanical Bells, Miniatures, Millefiori bells, Lighthouse Bells, and on Friday Goebel Bells, French Faience Ladies, Fenton's Indiana (PA) Connection, What is It Worth to You, and wrap up with the CBS documentary on one of our member's collection of large bells.

An Exhibit room will be open with displays of members' bell collections for everyone to view along with exhibit tables at scheduled times throughout the convention.

On Thursday, there will be an auction with over 300 bells being auctioned. Thursday evening will include dinner on the Tennessee Riverboat stern-wheeler ending with a mystery play "Who Done It."

On Friday, programs will continue and end with a grand banquet and installation of officers for the next year.

More information may be found at the americanbell.org website or contact the convention coordinator at 513-885-9040.

with steps, to the second story. Later, a companion newspaper article confirmed the business name and address and was available with the sign – both yours for $14,900.

Strawberry farmer and 40-year advertising sign collector Bill Krohne from Dowagiac, Mich., offered an early 1900s painted two-panel 20 by 30-inch sandwich sign for Moore's Paint, tagged at $900 and a 20 by 24-inch wood framed raised letter tin advertising sign for Dr. Daniels Horse and Dog Medicine, priced at $1,400.

Catching many an eye at the show, was a 21-inch diameter 1950s neon animated spinner milk advertising clock brought by Greg Rosenak of Anne's Anteex, Peoria, Ill. Marked "sold" was a 24-inch-tall die cut 1930s advertising sign with a diving woman wearing the famous Janzen brand swimsuit. Rosenak was another dealer coming to the show for the first time with promoter Granger and said he was impressed with the event and the crowds of shoppers.

Planning a trip? Event Finder can help you locate auctions and shows. All events listed under the Event Finder heading are advertised in this issue of AntiqueWeek. Events are listed by state, then by town with a brief description of the event, the opening date and finally the page number where the ad can be located.

Event Finder is only for advertised events. Auctioneers and show managers who want to be listed in our free calendar listings may continue to do so. Those free listings will be contained in the Auction or Show calendar sections.

While we have taken great care in compiling the information shown here, we strongly urge you to call the auctioneer or show manager listed for the event in case of cancellations or postponements. We also encourage auctioneers and show managers to contact us with any changes to their schedule. AntiqueWeek is not responsible for errors or omissions.

Calendars can also be searched online at www.antiqueweek.com

Please report late delivery

AntiqueWeek strives to provide customers with the best delivery possible. Occasionally, areas of the country do not receive timely delivery of the paper. The goal of AntiqueWeek's late delivery staff is to work with the USPS to get your paper to you – on time, every time. If your paper is not delivered on or before the issue date, please let us know.

These areas experienced multiple reports of late deliveries during the week of 04/06/21: Pennsylvania, Illinois, Missouri, Virginia .

These states reported single reports of late delivery for the same week: Georgia, Indiana, Texas Maryland.

Due to the high volume of calls we receive on a weekly basis, we are publishing some phone numbers for the USPS. We encourage you to call them and let them know how their recent changes have impacted your delivery.

Debra Benn: (317) 870-8244, Tracey Murphy: (317) 870-8238, Deborah Samuels: (317) 870-8245, Lynn Seymour: (317) 870-8263

Our staff members will continue to address the late delivery reports we receive. We are constantly striving to rectify the late delivery problem. Please call our customer care center at (800) 876-5133 or email subscriptions@antiqueweek.com to report late delivery. Continue to report delivery issues if problems are not fixed after the first call so staff members can continue to report these difficulties to the USPS.

In order to ensure everyone can see the paper on time, AntiqueWeek uploads each issue every Saturday morning to its website. The online issue is free to subscribers and totally keyword searchable. Visit www.antiqueweek.com.

Mother's Day

Establishing Mother's Day as an officially recognized day of honor became Anna M. Jarvis' primary purpose in life. She petitioned anyone she felt might be of help — social and business organizations, prominent individuals, church groups, and governmental entities. In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson signed legislation proclaiming the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day.

However, having ceded control of "her" holiday, Anna became increasingly displeased with the way others used — or, in her opinion, misused — it. When the trade publication Florists Review gleefully exulted "this is a holiday that can be exploited," Anna was incensed. Legal grappling occupied her later years: a 1923 suit to stop a Mother's Day observance . . . a 1930s "disturbing the peace" citation, for disrupting a flower-selling venture by the American War Mothers. . . a 1934 campaign against a postage stamp featuring the words "Mother's Day," framing a portrait of "Whistler's Mother" . . . and an ultimately unsuccessful attempt to copyright the term "Mother's Day" itself.

Jarvis's major foe was the flower industry, for whom Mother's Day proved a welcome sales bonanza. According to Anna M., florists were "charlatans, bandits, pirates, racketeers, kidnappers, and other termites." Ironically, it was the industry she railed against that assisted the aging, cash-strapped, health-challenged Anna: unknown to her, the Florist's Exchange paid for her care. Anna M. Jarvis died in 1948. Although she was childless, Mother's Day, the child of her imagination and determination, continued to flourish.

Envisioning Mother's Day as a non-commercial celebration, Anna M. Jarvis was in the minority. Next to Christmas, it's the biggest holiday of the year for gift purchases. In recent years, the National Retail Foundation has estimated that Mother's Day purchases bring in $14 billion annually. Of that amount, nearly $2 billion is spent on flowers. Almost $700 million goes toward greeting cards. There's about $3 billion spent on dining out, $2 billion for jewelry, $1 billion or so for clothing, plus plenty left over for "other" (which probably includes lots of boxes of chocolates).

Commercialization, however, can't diminish the unique, and quite sincere tug Mother's Day makes on our heartstrings. Those racks laden with greeting cards would not exist if there were no market for them. It's Mom's special day, and we want it to be perfect.

Retro Mother's Day cards, incidentally, make extremely affordable display items. They're just right for the second Sunday in May, or any day of the year. Especially desirable are vintage cards from the 1940s and '50s, many accented with velvety flocking, tiny "jewels", or bits of real ribbon and lace surrounding their illustrations of festive nosegays and overflowing floral baskets. Group them together, to highlight their variety. Or showcase them with a single ceramic Madonna, surrounded by fresh flowers, in a sprightly celebration of spring. You may even want to put together a display for Mom. She will, as always, thank you effusively.
