Words to live by in a convenient wood-like plaque

BY DONALD-BRIAN JOHNSON

“A penny saved is a penny earned”. . . “A stitch in time saves nine”. . . “An apple a day keeps the doctor away.”

Some folks call them mottos. Or proverbs. Folk sayings. Adages. Often, they have a definite ring of truth. (After all, if you save a penny, then you do indeed have one more than you started with.) Other times, maybe not so much. “Words to live by” like these creep their way into our consciousness, and often into our conversations. If you tell someone, “every cloud has a silver lining,” you know exactly what you’re saying, and they know exactly what you mean. You’ve taken a short cut on the road to communication.

Words to live by have been with us for a long, long time. They’ve been found on tablets carved by ancient Sumerians in 2000 B.C. There are plenty of proverbs in the Bible (and not just in the Book of Proverbs). Ben Franklin loved them. And, in the 19th century, seamstresses perfected their needlework by stitching inspiring messages into samplers. But what separates a proverb from a motto? A folk saying from an adage? Well, let’s get to those definitions right away. After all, “time waits for no one.”

Proverb: The phrase is short, the meaning literal, and the truth or advice imparted is pretty obvious. (“Don’t bite off more than you can chew.”)

Idiom: A group of words which typically wouldn’t make much sense

together, but, thanks to continued usage, their meaning is understood. (“It’s raining cats and dogs.”)

Motto: A statement of belief or purpose that may you serve you well, if you resolutely adhere to it. (“Never mix business with pleasure.”)

Aphorism: A concise way of expressing a “customary truth.” (“You made your bed, now you have to lie in it.”)

Folk Saying: A sentence that gives advice or info based on human life experience. (“Charity begins at home.”)

Axiom: An unprovable rule, accepted as true because it’s self-evident. (“Nothing can both be and not be at the same time.”)

Adage: A somewhat antiquated means of expressing what’s assumed to be a general truth. (“Every child is

Bidders flocked to John E. Bundy carved decoys

BY WILLIAM FLOOD

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. — On Sept. 15, Carmel auctioneer Castles and Attics, in collaboration with Ripley Auctions, held the second installment of the John and Valarie Bundy Decoy and Antiques Auction. This event paid tribute to John E. Bundy (1949-1973), a nationally renowned decoy artist and outdoorsman. Bundy's decoys, crafted from carefully selected local woods like white cedar and walnut, were celebrated for their flawless surfaces and high-gloss finishes. He famously remarked that his creations were "intended for the mantel instead of the marsh," emphasizing their artistic appeal.

This auction featured over 650 lots, including 77 Bundy decoys, alongside unique tools, antique decor, primitive furniture, hunting firearms, and other collectibles. The decoys represented an array of 46 duck varieties, including bluebills, mallards, and pintails, as well as varieties of egrets, loons, swans, and even fish. The various carvings, crafted from 15 different types of wood, spanned five decades of Bundy's career.

The highest bid for a Bundy decoy reached $600 for a 14-inch example carved from spalted curly maple. A 13-inch bluebill decoy, crafted from burlled walnut, sold for $225, while a 9-inch courting ruddy, also made of walnut and part of the 1986 Carvers Collection, fetched $180. Additionally, a pair of Bundy hand-finished decoys brought in $160.

Among the other bird carvings was a 14-inch tall shorebird that reached

Townsend's continue tradition with Vintage Markets and Toy Shows this fall

BY RICHARD K. LODGE

ROCHESTER, Minn. — The "thrill of the hunt" is still the hallmark of the antique and collectible shows Kae and Richard Townsend have been running for more than half a century.

The couple are hosting their Fall 2024 Vintage Markets and Toy Shows on Sunday, Nov. 3, and Sunday, Dec. 1, at the Graham Park fairgrounds.

They've lined up 55 dealers who will bring a vast array of antiques and collectibles. Many dealers return each year — as do many customers — streaming in from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and beyond.

"It's all about the thrill of the hunt," said Kae Townsend. "You just never know what the dealers are going to bring. They actively buy collections, go to auctions, they go to all the tag sales and garage sales. You never know what people are going to find."

This autumn marks the 45th year she and her husband have been hosting the November and December flea market and toy shows; their spring years and are still actively buying, but their focus these days is on planning, organizing and promoting the shows.

$160. A pair of exquisitely crafted 22-inch Cranford wooden geese sold for $150.

Bidders managed to pick up some bargains on Bundy pieces. Three unfinished Bundy pintails, the largest at 15 inches, sold for just $22.50. And a collection of six unfinished spalted maple decoys, approximately 12 inches in length, was grabbed for just $10.

Alongside the wildlife carvings, there were 15 lots of carved walking sticks, some made by Bundy himself. The top bid among these was $160 for a dozen unfinished pieces. A striking 41-inch walking stick carved by Bundy sold for $110, while another bidder snagged a John Bundy clock tower-style example, crafted from curly maple and walnut in its natural finish, for just $25.

The auction featured more than just carvings. In fact, the highest bid of $8,100 went for a pair of 1920s Fratelli Toso Tiffany Studios Italian art glass lamps. These 16-inch lamps were in very good overall condition but required rewiring. Bidding also six figures, at $1,050, for an antique industrial Singer sewing machine designed for leatherwork. This impressive unit stood 62 inches tall and was still operational. In contrast, a mid-20th century wooden Bell Telephone booth, originally from Indiana University in Bloomington, was picked up for $90.

There were more than 30 lots of antique and primitive furniture offered. An early two-piece painted oak cabinet fetched $800. The 54-inch wide by 90-inch tall cabinet still had its original hardware and glass, though it exhibited some paint stripping and needed doors remounted. Later, an antique pie safe with six tin door panels, a center drawer, and bottom cabinet doors sold for $375. Measuring 40 inches wide by 73 inches tall, it was in solid condition but missing some hardware. Bidding also reached $300 for a 46-inch wide by 75-inch tall oak possum belly kitchen cabinet. It was in good condition, except for a missing breadboard.

There were also small primitives, including a 30-inch diameter early copper rendering kettle, which sold for a respectable $350. Three antique homemade quilts were also offered. The highest bid was $190 for a 72-inch square quilt in a log cabin pattern. A red and white circa 1888 quilt, measuring 68 inches by 86 inches, reached $140. Meanwhile, an early 20th-century quilt measuring 84 inches by 72 inches, exhibiting some age-related toning, sold for $55.

Small decor included nine lots containing vintage boat paddles repurposed as coat racks. While they sold for modest prices ranging from $15 to $22.50 each, the unique pieces no doubt appealed to bidders interested in hunting and fishing collectibles.

Another 40 lots came from Bundy's substantial beer can collection. Three different lots featured six-packs of Six Twenty Grand Ale cone-top beer cans in their holders. Two made it to $1,050, while a third sold for $1,000. Each of the three was in expected vintage condition, with stains, can oxidation, and tears in the cardboard carriers. Other cone-top lots sold from $20 for a pair of Gold Medal cans in rough shape to $425 for a single 20 Grand Cream Ale can in good vintage condition.

Below: Nearly 50 lots with vintage beer cans were offered, from brands like Fehrs, Krueger, and Schmidt. Three six-packs of 20 Grand Ale sold from $1,000-$1,050.

Below: Over 30 lots of firearms were auctioned. A Spanish Juker .45 caliber percussion muzzleloader, ideal for display, sold for $75.

Sweet memories will be made during auction of Carmazzi family home

BY ERIC C. RODENBERG

URBANA, Ohio -The name “Carmazzi” is known to nearly everyone who grew up in this west central town of just over 11,000 residents thanks to Carmazzi’s Deli and Candy Store. The store has been supplying a sweet fix to residents young and old since the 1930s.

Now those residents may get a chance to own something connected to the Carmazzi name when Lile Auctions sells the contents of the Carmazzi home on Oct. 19.

Located downtown on Monument Square, Carmazzi’s Deli and Candy Store was housed in a Federal style building originally erected to house the headquarters of Gen. Jonathon Meigs during the War of 1812. In 1893, it became Bianchi’s Fruit Store.

Right: Auctioneer Mick Lile will be selling many grand items from the Carmazzi family on Oct. 19 at the Champaign County Fairgrounds. Included among a trove of antiques is a 19th century ornate Steinway baby grand piano.

In 1931, after Sam Bianchi died, his niece, Victoria and her husband Frank Carmazzi took over the store and re-named it Carmazzi’s.

Upon buying the store, the new owners proudly added the gold “Carmazzi’s” lettering, seen by generations, in an arc on the window, a welcoming sign to children of all ages. For within, Carmazzi’s there was what seemed like millions of sweets to choose from: hoarhound candy, Tootsie Rolls, candy buttons, candy necklaces, Necco wa-

“We’ve been promoting since 1969,” she said. “We love the business.”

They also love the people – on both sides of the table – and over the decades recognize many familiar faces.

Dealers bring new, unexpected items each year and the anticipation has customers lined up long before the doors open at 9 a.m.

Among the items expected at the fall shows are advertising signs, hunting and fishing collectibles, gasoline and auto memorabilia, comics, postcards, vintage toys, tools, primitives, militaria, books, ephemera, vintage clothing, costume jewelry, glass, pottery, lamps, small furniture, home décor, Pyrex, picture frames, holiday items, kitchen ware and farm antiques. And for shoppers who get hungry there will be baked goods, pies, jams and more.

Nostalgia seems to drive a lot of the collectors’ interest.

“People always seem to gravitate to things they had when they were children, things they’d forgotten about,” said Townsend. “They say, ‘Oh, I had that when I was young,’ they start looking at it, picking it up and remembering things. That’s kind of what it’s about.”

She suggested the internet has guided and even sparked some collectors’ interest. “A person might have one piece of china or pottery handed down from their mother or grandmother.” Though initially it may not seem significant, an online search may indicate its worth – “and once they see it has value, they take a different attitude toward it. That’s what starts them collecting.”

She acknowledged the internet has changed the business of the buying and selling of antiques and collectibles and winnowed out many antique venues.

“There are fewer shows than there were in the past,” Townsend said. Nonetheless, she is not discouraged. “Now the younger dealers are coming, which is nice,” a sign of the next generation of vendors.

Most dealers are well educated about what they collect and willing to educate a new collector. “They take the time to talk to customers. We value that. It’s a social thing for young and old. You form bonds and good relationships.”

And not just with the dealers. “Our customers are real faithful, too. It’s well worth them coming because they’re always going to find something they like.”

The shows in November and December are held in two accessible buildings, Crawford Hall and Floral Hall, connected by a tiled patio. Both shows run from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Entry to each show is $3 and parking is free.

Above: Practical and decorative, vintage boxes will be one of the attractions at the two shows in November and December.

And as Townsend points out, there is another attraction for visitors to the Nov. 3 show – the brilliant fall colors on the way to and from Rochester.

 Planning a trip? Event Finder can help you locate auctions and shows. All events listed under the Event Finder heading are advertised in this issue of AntiqueWeek. Events are listed by state, then by town with a brief description of the event, the opening date and finally the page number where the ad can be located.

Event Finder is only for advertised events. Auctioneers and show managers who want to be listed in our free calendar listings may continue to do so. Those free listings will be contained in the Auction or Show calendar sections.

While we have taken great care in compiling the information shown here, we strongly urge you to call the auctioneer or show manager listed for the event in case of cancellations or postponements. We also encourage auctioneers and show managers to contact us with any changes to their schedule. AntiqueWeek is not responsible for errors or omissions.

fers, lollipops, jawbreakers, wax lips, chocolate cigarettes and cigars.

Of course, like all the stores of the era, the Carmazzis filled the store with other items for sale – jam packed all together in the relatively tiny sales area. Adults could buy most of the major Ohio newspapers, The New York Times and periodicals. Cosmetics were available. Nearly anything one could imagine was for sale in the tiny store.

John Carmazzi began working in the store before he could barely see over the counter. Now, 90-years-old, John looks back with pride, as the location became one of Urbana's most popular "hang outs."

Auctioneer Mick Lile remembers going into the store as a child and grabbing a handful of penny candy. "It was almost as good as things could happen at the time," he recalls.

The Carmazzi store is still open in downtown Urbana, and the new owners decided to stick with the old and trusted name.

On Oct. 19, Lile will be selling the Left: In nearly pristine condition is a circa 1950s Coca-Cola machine, The sale will also include a vintage electric Coca-Cola advertising clock.

contents of the Carmazzi home at the Champaign County Fairgrounds at 384 Park Avenue

"This is the kind of auction that all auctioneers dream about having," Lile said. "This offering is from one of the oldest families in Urbana."

The auction will also include many items from John Carmazzi's wife's family, William and Siverina Whalen who were longtime antique collectors.

The house, built in 1850, has been uninhabited for the past 20 years, Lile said. Some of the highlights of the sale include a 7-foot-tall wooden carved full figure of Jesus, bought from an antique dealer in the 1970s. There is a 19th century Steinway baby grand piano, a wooden tramp art clock, a two-door Coca-Cola cooler (circa 1950), a Coca-Cola electric advertising clock (also 1950), a crank Victrola talking machine, a National Brass Cash Register (probably used in the Carmazzi store), a vintage fainting couch, a Wapak butter churn, a life-size Pillsbury Dough Boy advertising figure, several glass gumball machines, a crank wall phone and many 19th century-era books.

There are numerous pieces of antique furniture, including a three-door ornate bookcase, a 7-foot by 8-foot open bookcase, a claw foot and carved lion's head harvest table, antique beds, chairs and multi-drawer chests.

Above: Among the more unique items is a carved wooden statue of Jesus, measuring at about 7 feet tall. Michele Carmazzi said her mother bought the sculpted figure in the 1970s.

Left: Also included in the sale is an altar from the St. Mary's Church in Urbana, Ohio. All of the items in the Oct. 19 auction came from the Carmazzi home, one of the oldest homes in Urbana.

ANNUAL THANKSGIVING WEEKEND AMERICANA AUCTION @ THE GARTH'S BARN NOVEMBER 29-30, 2024

ALL HEART

Large selection of 18th & 19th Century watercolors

Featuring: The Lifetime Collection of Robert Horn, Eaton, Ohio
The Lifetime Collection of Carol Schulman, Chesterland, Ohio
The Lifetime Collection of Joanne & Dr. David Woodyard, Granville, Ohio
Plus Select Items From Collections in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Indiana

One of the best Americana auctions to sell at the Garth's Barn in many years, with roughly 900 lots of well-documented, important, and scarce examples of 18th & 19th Century folk art, furniture, and decorative accessories. Of note are the wonderful examples of weathervanes, trade signs, Odd Fellows & lodge material, works on paper, redware, lighting, baskets, and treen - many fresh-to-market examples from collections that have been built over 50+ years!

Full Color Catalog Available, $30.

Live & Online (Seat reservations recommended).
Visit ameliajeffers.com/thanksgiving2024 for more information, to order a catalog, or reserve a seat.

Preview available throughout the month of November, by appointment.

An important Ohio sign, ex Clark Garrett, Greg Kramer, and David Good

Extensive & unusual period lighting selection

Important collection of fine early tall case clocks

Wonderful architectural corner cupboard with shelf interior, one example of many New England pieces from dealers like Florene Maine, Marguerite Riordan, Liverant & Sons, C.I., Prickett, and others

Unusual pewter apothecary, ex Pick Richardson

Large and impressive collection of painted furniture, folk art, and trade signs

Wonderful selection of weathervanes and period decorative objects

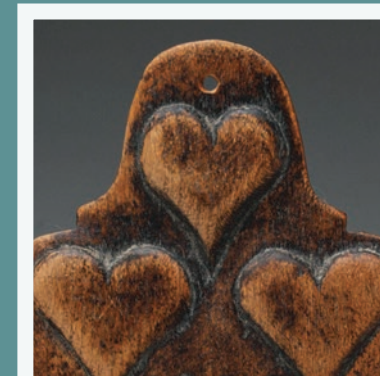

Significant carved and painted period signs (including an early carving of the first slate seal of New Jersey, ex Stephen Score), furniture, decorative accessories, and lodge material

When starting my auction company, I wanted to do things differently. With no aspirations to build the biggest auction house, I simply wanted a place where all of my favorite aspects of the art & antiques community could be cultivated: knowledge, passion, curiosity, trust, & relationships. A place driven not by numbers, but by heart & soul - a genuine devotion to the "stuff" & people who love it. With a team of experienced, diligent, & kind professionals, I can tell you with confidence that there is one thing you can count on from us: that when it comes to representing you & your collection, we are all heart.

Important 2-Part Auction for the Estate of Marvin P. Schelhouse!

Auction #1 Online-Only Sale - Contents of his Home in Greenwood, DE!

Bidding Ends: Wednesday, October 23rd, 2024 Starting @ 5PM

Auction conducted online at AMAuctions.com via HiBid!

Items located @ 8821 Shawnee Rd., Greenwood, DE 19950!

Selection of Furniture/Items purchased from the Estate of General Alfred

T.A. Torbert, Period Furniture, Primitives, Art, Antiques, Glass/China & more!

Preview @ the home in Greenwood, DE: Monday, October 21st, 2024 from 4 PM – 6 PM

Auctioneers Note: Allen and Marshall Auctioneers is honored to help with the sale of the Estate of Marvin P. Schelhouse. Marvin honorably served our country as a Master Sergeant in the U.S. Marine Corps for 20 years from 1956-76. After retiring from the Marine Corps, he moved with his family to Milford and began working for the State of Delaware, Dept. of Labor for over 20 years. Marvin was very active in the Milford School District, serving on the Board of Education for over 30 years. While being a member of the Board, he served as President multiple times. He served and was President of the Milford Historical Society for many years, in the restoration of the Parson Thorne Mansion. He was the Milford Museum commissioner in charge of many exhibits, such as the Vietnam War, the Battle of Iwo Jima, and the Civil War. For over 50 years, Marvin studied and had a profound interest in the life and military career of General Alfred Thomas Archimedes Torbert (1833-1880) of the U.S. Army, one of Delaware's most notable sons. Marvin edited the only book written about General Torbert, titled A.T.A. Torbert, Southern Gentleman in Union Blue, by Nancy Slade. Marvin was one of the persons the book was dedicated to. Marvin founded and was the first Commander of the General Torbert Camp of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War. In this capacity, he took the leadership role to restore the Milford Union Cemetery where 12 Civil War soldiers and one from the Spanish-American War are buried. In 1969, Marvin was the only person to attempt to save General Torbert's house in Milford from destruction. This was an endeavor that was unsuccessful. Marvin worked to save and preserve other Milford historical properties. In honor of General Torbert and his service to our country, Marvin successfully spearheaded the effort to have a statue of General A.T.A. Torbert erected on the grounds of the Milford Museum. Marvin served on the Civil War Society that established the Delaware Memorial/Monument at Gettysburg National Military Park to commemorate the service of those Delawareans that fought at the Battle of Gettysburg. Marvin received a Tribute from the Delaware House of Representatives for his work and his accomplishment 137 years after the battle. Marvin was an honorable and distinguished icon of Milford, DE, who will truly be missed by all. This is one of the most important sales of our time for local and regional Civil War Memorabilia. If you are a collector of Civil War Memorabilia this is one sale you won't want to miss!! Go to AMAuctions.com for all details!

Dealers traveled from afar to set up at Indy Advertising Show

BY JACK KELLY

INDIANAPOLIS — The third weekend in September again saw the gates open on the fall Indy Advertising Show at the Boone County Fairgrounds northwest of Indianapolis.

Dealers from as far away as Texas and California traveled to the event, filling all available buildings of the fairgrounds.

The show was hosted by promoters Damon and Angela Granger, who also host a similar spring event at the Indianapolis Fairgrounds.

“We’re jam-packed full, using all buildings on the fairgrounds,” said Damon Granger, who noted there was an additional breweriana and bottle collectors event added to this year’s line-up.

California dealer Carl Lepiane traveled seven days from LaQuinta with a whole van full of goodies, taking time to “shop along the way.” Many admired his trio of 1930s country store Watta Pop plaster countertop candy sucker head figures priced from $400 to $600 each. Still others “ooohed and aahed” over a colorful screen-printed 18-inch self-framed 1920s Fatima Cigarettes tin tray that could hang at your home for $1,400.

It was a bit shorter drive for Terry Mcpherson who traveled 900 miles from Arlington, Texas, to set up for the fifth year at the show. Serious gas and oil memorabilia collectors stopped to admire his mid-1950s Around the World brand gasoline pump advertising glass globe — with a price tag of $30,000 — and yet another tag marked “sold.”

Another Texas dealer, Bart Stevens of Irving, showed off a large group of car racing and other sports collectibles. Twenty-one pennants priced from $150 to $6,500 each filled the booth, along with a 14-by x 22-inch 1960s Santa Fe Speedway Chicago-area framed cardboard poster for $250.

Still another long-distance team, Dave and Allie Smith, showed goodies they brought from Bartlesville, Okla. Foot traffic stopped at their booth to check out an early 1900s furry 27-inch-long standing full figure cow that Allie called a “point of purchase piece.” The clockwork milker’s head would move up and down to attract shoppers’ attention — and could entertain for you at home for $1,750. People who like smaller items checked out their 9-inch-long pre-1900s Victorian style porcelain and cobalt glass straw drink dispenser, priced at $850.

Not everyone traveled long distances to the show. Alfred Baker drove just 15 minutes from nearby Zionsville, Ind., to show off a colorful 3 by 5 foot cotton cloth RCA “Nipper Dog” advertising banner that he purchased at an antique market in London, England. He tagged it at $400. Bottle collectors hovered around his display of 15 cast metal advertising wall-mounted bottle openers offered at $40 each.

Many folks stopped to gawk at the 42-inch wingspan papier-mâché eagle perched on top of the figure of a globe advertising Majestic Radios. The advertising piece, made by the famous Old King Cole Advertising Display Co., was priced at $3,500 by dealer Steve Mumma of West Des Moines, Ia.

Dog lovers checked out the early 1900s cast iron footed floor model dog feeding dish advertising Hudson’s Soap, priced at $650 by Bill Krohn, Dowagiac, Mich.

While another year will pass before the show returns to Boone County on the fourth weekend in September, shoppers and dealers can look forward to the spring show, always held the third weekend in March at the fairgrounds at Indianapolis.

As the fall show closed, dealers and visitors heaped compliments on show promoters Damon and Angela Granger, who took over management of the event this year, calling “better than ever before.”

Wood Plaques

beautiful in the eyes of its mother.”)

Confusing? Well, “beggars can’t be choosers,” and the boundaries are blurry. What’s important to remember is that each is an effective means of conveying an understood and accepted message, with a metaphorical or symbolic style that transcends everyday speech. By the mid 20th century, such “words to live by” made their way into American homes, thanks to inspirational wall plaques. When folks found themselves in need of advice, encouragement, a smile, or just a pick-me-up on a dreary day, there it was, staring them right in the face.

Gazing at a wall plaque from the 1930s or ‘40s, you can’t help but admire the hand-carved lettering and images, often highlighted with color accents, on burnished wood backings.

The Syracuse Ornamental Company of Syracuse, New York (“Syroco”), pioneered the concept of molded wood décor pieces, producing near-perfect replicas of hand carving. Although the plaques looked hand-carved, and of “real” wood, they actually weren’t. Like other wood-like carved novelties of the era, these wall plaques were actually molded, pressed wood creations, putting them within the reach of almost every pocketbook. And, although numerous companies produced similar items, it was Syroco that developed the concept, and led the pack.

Syrocowood was a product born of necessity. In 1890, wood artisan Adolph Holstein, a recent immigrant to the United States, found his skills as an accomplished carver in great demand. Ornatly carved woodwork was popular, and Holstein’s numerous commissions extended throughout New York. Soon, more master carvers were added to the staff of Holstein’s new company, “Syroco,” but the time-consuming process of hand-carving limited the number of orders that could be accepted. Training additional carvers required years of apprenticeship. Holstein’s solution was to create a master carving, cast a mold, then cast replicas from that. Since only one master carving was required for each design, both production and affordability were greatly enhanced.

Syroco’s oft-stated goal was to ensure its Syrocowood objects were as close to “wood-like” as possible. The effect of authentic wood was enhanced by carving each master from the specific type of wood its replicas were intended to resemble. A lead mold was cast from the carving, with the surface textured as per the grain of the original wood. The mold was then filled with a mixture of wood flour, waxes, and resins, and compressed. After removal from the mold, sanding removed mold lines, and the piece received either multi-color decoration, or a natural wood stain.

In the company’s early years, the call was primarily for decorative furniture trim, a ready replacement for hand-carving, or for expensive, less-detailed, stamped designs. Syroco trim pieces soon adorned everything from caskets to armchairs, and took the place of hand-carved trim molding in home interiors.

But tastes change. As highly ornamented furniture and molding trim fell out of favor, Syroco sought new avenues for its product. In the 1930s, the Syroco line of wood-like novelty items made its debut. Here, the creative impulses of Syroco carvers, and company designer Fred Fisher, could be given free reign on a dizzying array of ashtrays, door stops, dresser boxes, pen sets, picture frames, bookends, brush holders, corkscrews, bottle openers, clocks, paperweights, coasters, coin trays, desk calendars, bar trays, humidors, pipe racks, napkin rings, note boxes, thermometers, tie racks, statuettes. . . and motto plaques.

These were the sort of items vacationers might snap up, and that was actually the original intent. Billed as “just right for elegant living and gracious giving,” pressed wood plaques made great souvenirs. On many, there was a molded circular space, for a decal heralding the specific vacation spot where it had been purchased. Across the United States, dime and department stores began stocking the plaques.

The popularity of Syroco soon gave rise to a host of imitators: main competitor Burwood Products Co. (“Karv-Kraft”) of Michigan; the Canadian firm, Durwood; Multi-Products (“Décor-A-Wood”); Ornamental Arts & Crafts Co. (“Orn-A-Craft”); and even a Syroco associate company, Ornawood.

The 1950s also saw a major shift in what exactly constituted a Syroco product, with compression molding phased out in favor of injection molding. Although the appearance was still of hand-carved wood, the composition was now an all- polymer blend. Resulting pieces were lighter, sturdier and cheaper.

Today, vintage Syrocowood plaques and other novelties do a brisk business at antique shows and online. Inexpensive in their day, pressed wood wall plaques still remain a very affordable collectible. Plenty offer up their words of wisdom with most averaging under $25. Collectors should appreciate that. After all, “a penny saved is a penny earned.”
